

This application provides the review committee and selecting official a summary of your education, work experience, and capabilities in specific areas pertinent to the vacant position. List your education or training and work experience in the spaces provided. Number your entries consecutively in the Reference No. columns, e.g., education or training 1-6, postal positions 7-10, etc.

The vacancy announcement to which you are responding lists a number of job requirements. In this application you are to provide your qualifications in reference to those requirements. Your statement of qualification should include a demonstration of the required knowledge, skill, or ability (KSA). All of the requirements should be addressed. Failure to address each requirement results in an incomplete application which may lead to your being found unqualified.

Read each of the requirements listed on the vacancy announcement. Consider carefully achievements which demonstrate the KSA specified for that requirement. Achievements may be either a specific instance or sustained high performance over a period of time. These achievements may have occurred in all kinds of settings, e.g., paid work in the Postal Service or any other organization, volunteer work, or education or training activities. For each requirement try to give several examples of achievements that demonstrate that you possess the KSA. Achievements may be best described by telling of a situation or task which needed to be done; stating what action you took; and finally, describing the result of that action. Be sure it is clear to the reader that:

1. What you are describing actually demonstrates the KSA.
2. The situation, action, and result are fully described.

3. You yourself were in some way responsible for the result.
4. If you displayed initiative or innovation, it is explained.

If your achievement was the acquisition of education or training, then your achievement description should indicate the following:

1. What you learned and how that learning relates to the KSA specified in the requirement.
2. Details or nature of the course - topics covered, level of complexity.
3. Evidence of the quality of your performance in the course, if available. Simply mentioning that you took a course may not indicate you gained much knowledge from it.
4. Any application of what you learned.

The content of the description you write is much more important than writing style. You must communicate to the reader how you have demonstrated the KSA. Be specific about what you personally did. Merely saying that you possess a KSA is not adequate.

Write your achievement descriptions as though none of the review committee members or the selecting official knows anything about you (it's very likely the truth). After each achievement description, indicate the reference person(s) who could verify your achievements. Your supervisor may also be contacted to verify any work-related statements you write. Also indicate for each achievement the reference number of your education or training, or work experience connected to your achievements.

If you are applying for a managerial or supervisory position, read the following:

When the ability to manage or supervise is listed as a requirement, applicants should present achievements (examples) that demonstrate their current ability to undertake the full range of responsibility for the position being sought. If the position involves the supervision of lower-level supervisors and managers, applicants are generally expected to indicate sustained high performance in a supervisory or managerial position previously held.

Following are the three components of managerial ability that should guide the applicant's demonstration of achievement. Not all considerations listed here need be addressed. The objective is for the applicant to demonstrate managerial ability as it applies to the position being sought.

1. Structuring/Organizing. Identifying problems and their causes and securing relevant information; developing solutions to problems and making logical decisions that make effective use of resources and accomplish organizational goals; making innovations, investing effort, and keeping high standards to ensure a product of high quality; and following up on activities to see that they were on target, on time, and within budget.

2. Establishing Effective Work Relationships. Encouraging employees to participate in decisions that affect their work and the quality of their life at work; supporting management's mission and representing the unit at the next higher management level; engaging in teamwork with other managers; maintaining effective relationships with clients and customers; acting on EEO, Affirmative Action, EI/QWL, Management by Participation policies and programs; maintaining cooperative labor-management relations; providing honest and constructive feedback and positive recognition; training and developing subordinates; and handling interpersonal conflicts.

3. Communicating. Communicating information and instructions in writing and orally to achieve desired results; presenting technical information at a level appropriate to the audience; and facilitating information flow within the organizational unit.
